

Why we offer you a better opportunity for success.

Today, IGC's profile consists of a sound combination of strategically located apartment communities in the mid-west. Currently employing over 80 people, and devoting significant resources to professional development and technological improvements, IGC is about realizing visions.

Founded on the idea that people who are managed with integrity will create a better customer experience is a philosophy rooted in the core values of its managing partners, Michael Sakich and Jonathan Hicks. Constantly seeking to anticipate needs, provide meaningful solutions and demand accountability, their grass-roots strategies have rewarded them in an industry where people are seeking a sense of connection that's meaningful and real.

Careful attention to detail distinguishes In Good Company from other real estate multi-housing entities in a myriad of ways. Taking the time to learn about the resident, adding new amenities, and providing expected and extra-ordinary conveniences add significant value and build trust. From the start, IGC has taken extra steps to efficiently manage its properties, modernize its operations and control its costs, while at the same time consistently building exceptional relationships with residents, investors and employees alike. These kinds of "people initiatives" are executed with clarity and competence; talents IGC exhibits every day.

How do you become the best?

You find excellent people, and then you treat them right.

Discover excellence with IGC

Discover Excellence with IGC

Both new construction and meticulously maintained existing multi-family properties stand as our sentinels to growth and success, throughout Indiana.

We're offering more, so we're looking for more.

The principles of IGC have been involved in the purchase, rehabilitation, development and management of more than $300,000,000 of multifamily real estate.

We believe what we do is important.

Helping people secure quality housing, and then ensuring they feel at home in every way possible is an honorable profession to us. As we accomplish that, we will need dedicated people who are willing to commit themselves to excellence. In return we offer our team members the same nurturing experience we promise our Residents every day.

What does that mean to you? If you're looking for a place to serve others in a career with the fastest growing property management company in Indiana, you need to come see us. We offer a full benefit package, and the opportunity to grow and become a leader in the hospitality industry.
